Result: Great Kingshill won by 9 wickets.

Hurley's batting woes continued at Great Kingshill. On losing the toss Phil Ridgeway was invited to bat first on a wicket that had not been protected from overnight rain. Not surprisingly the un-predictable bounce made batting rather difficult. It was all a case of déjà vu for the opening pair of Mike Walton and Imran Arshad, just like last week, Walton played out a maiden from the first over and Arshad fell to the first ball of the second, pushing an innocuous delivery from Ian Talmer to slip. Yasir Gul made a dozen in his own unique fashion before chipping Talmer to mid-wicket. Hurley soon slipped to 15 for 3 as Talmer picked up his third with a sharp return catch to dismiss Fayyaz Kayani. The veteran pairing of Walton and Ian Dawkins showed some resistance with a partnership of thirty before Walton gloved down the leg side off Jason Talmer and was well caught by Symons behind the stumps. 45 for 3 became 51 for 5 as Dawkins (30) and Ridgeway (0) were undone by the bounce, both lofting catches off balls which popped. Jono Patrick (15) and Abdul Jabbar (20) got the score up to 80 but the loss of the last four wickets for 4 runs put paid to an inadequate innings from the visitors.

In order to gain anything from the match Hurley needed to take wickets, but with the pitch drying out and getting easier to bat on, this proved a difficult task. Hurley were not helped by dropped catches, with Arshad and Walton both guilty. Luke Wright (62*) played like a man in a hurry, smashing boundaries at every opportunity. The only success for the visitors came with the wicket of Nick Mitchell, who lost his middle stump to a yorker from Kayani. The hosts eased home in the nineteenth over leaving Hurley pointless, which is fine in a quiz show hosted by Alexander Armstrong but not in a cricket match. The final week of the season sees Hurley take on Emmbrook & Bearwood at Shepherds Lane, where they will be hoping to salvage some pride in a disappointing season.
